

Cacophony

TSANG Hui-lam (Munsang College)

Drowning in the ocean
Of emotions frozen
Falling from the cliff
Into the hole, lonely soul

I know, I know how you're feeling
Heartbroken like an ice-cream melting
With your chamber shut
A century's worth of dust

But I'm here next to you
I'll always be here listening to your blues
Now please grab your key and open your lock
Let me in and remove the block

Can you show me, show me what's in your heart
Just speak, just speak
Open your heart and tell your story
I miss your laughter
When your heart wasn't in half
That sound is history
I wish to hear that cacophony

I know, I know that your scars hurt
The non-stop and painful bleeding
The silence lingers
Those untold troubles

But I'm here next to you
I'll always be here listening to your blues
Now please free your heart and simply tell me
Let me hear and lend a helping hand

Can you show me, show me what's in your heart
Just speak, just speak

Open your heart and tell your story
I miss your laughter
When your heart wasn't in half
That sound is history
I wish to hear that cacophony

Share your feelings what you think what you want
No fear, no fear
I promise I will hold and catch your tears
Hold my hand
I will do what I can
By your side I'll stand
' Cause you are not alone in your story
There's the cacophony